Abbott Replies Methods of Demobilization Are Criticized in Commons By Conservative Speakers

By DARC O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, Sept. 12.—(CP)—Defence Minister Abbott last night asked Progressive Conservative members of the Commons to disclose what changes they would make in the government's demobilization methods and this brought forth Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt, VC, the retort that it was not up to the opposition to outline a policy.

Col. Merritt, who was the victor in a debate on the subject, stressed again at Ottawa in 1942, spoke after Mr. Abbott rose to reply to statements made earlier by Maj. Gen. Peakes, V.C. (PC, Nanaimo).

Col. Merritt, Progressive Conservative member for Vancouver-Burrard, said that while he would not want to be heard as the men still overseas were going to get jobs if those in the army in Canada were discharged first.

ABBOTT'S VIEWPOINT

Mr. Abbott said Gen. Peakes had enumerated exceptions to the first-in, first-out principle of discharge but had not said what exceptions were wrong.

No objection had been raised to discharging men returning to agriculture or to work in essential occupations. Men unsuitable for training had also been mentioned. If opposition members favored tax reductions for men who had been in the army, they should be kept in the army.

No suggestion was made that what should be done with the home defence army although there was criticism. The army was kept in the army on essential military duty. If opposition members wanted them to go to work ahead for occupation duty they had said so.

STANDING ARMY URGED

Gen. Peakes interjected that he had suggested the home defence army be forced into the proposed standing army but would be ready to serve anywhere in case of emergency.

In his earlier remarks, Gen. Peakes had charged that the government's demobilization system was working to the "serious disadvantage of our men overseas" and he urged the immediate discontinuance of the country's "futile two-army system."

Mr. Abbott said that "if these gentlemen think there is something wrong with our methods of demobilization I would like to hear them say what they would do."

120,000 REPATRIATED

More than 120,000 men in the three services had already been repatriated to Canada, with 18,000 arriving last Sunday alone. By the end of September there would be more men repatriated than anticipated.

Col. Merritt said he knew Mr. Abbott was not responsible for the government's two-army system, because he was not the defence minister when the system was adopted. However, he had hoped to hear a concrete statement from the minister on demobilization plans. All he had heard were derogatory remarks about Gen. Peakes' speech.

What the people wanted to know—and that from the defence minister—was how men overseas would get jobs if discharged after those in Canada.

URGED MOBILIZATION

Eugene Marquis (L-Kamouraska) said that those who now were calling for demobilization of everyone in the forces were asking a few months ago for the conscription of everyone in the country. Other speakers at the night sitting included T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview); Mrs. Gladys Strum (ICP—Qu'Appelle); Don Fleming (PC—Toronto Kildonan); Maj. L. E. Baker (L—Shelburne); Yarnsworth; and Capt. Paul Fren and Vlas (L—St. Boniface).

Gen. Peakes, who like Col. Merritt and a number of other speakers was making his maiden speech, said the two army system was the one hit on the stickmen of Canada's war effort and it was time to remove it.

"We should no longer have this bifocal army through which one class of men are at the front and go wherever their country calls them while the other class see only as living only so far as to the shores of Canada restrict their activities," he said.

OTHERS HEARD

Gen. Peakes spoke during continued debate on the address in reply to the throne speech. Other speakers heard were Maurice LaPlante (L—Lafayette); F. S. Zaitlin (ICP—Jasper); and T. L. Church (PC—Toronto Broadview).

Gen. Peakes, who retired from the army about six months ago, charged a shuffling in the Commons when he said that heavy veterans in the Commons should support the Progressive Conservative party, non-consentation which accused the government with failing to adopt proper demobilization procedure.

Cries of "Ho Ho" came from the Liberal benches when he made the statement in a loud voice which elicited slight traces of an English accent.

Mr. Lalonde, who was re-elected in the general election of June 11, said the minister gave the new parliament "councils us to forget our political differences and to think only of Canada's interests."

SPEAKS IN FRENCH

Speaking at times in French and at times in English, Mr. Lalonde said he may be surprised at the way Quebec had remained Liberal in the election.

He did not say he had called for a general election which he believed would be won by doubtful support.

Commons Hears Maiden Speech Of Gen. Peakes

OTTAWA, Sept. 12.—(CP)—

Maj. Gen. G. R. Peakes, V.C., making his maiden speech in the Commons, said yesterday that while his riding of Nanaimo was a "paradise" he did not want anyone to consider it an "old folks' home" because it had several industries which he hoped the government would develop.

The former officer commanding the Pacific Command said his constituency situated as it was on the southern part of Vancouver Island was in the logging industry and commercial and sport fishing being developed.

ASKS DEVELOPMENT

From his seat among Progressive Conservative party benches he wished to ask the government to encourage development of these industries to provide employment for returning servicemen.

The logging industry was on the threshold of new development. Conditions in the logging camps were better than in previous years and the work in them would represent attractive and wholesome out-of-door employment for discharged servicemen.

He asked that the government do its utmost to develop the industry's greatest danger—forest fire hazards.

Peakes said the fishing industry of British Columbia was well equipped. Given encouragement it would provide employment for many returned men.

"Before the war that industry was in the hands of the Japanese," said Gen. Peakes. They drove the white fishermen off our Canadian coast. The money they sent back to a foreign land. Never again must the Japanese be permitted to capture the fishing trade of British Columbia."

"FIRST IN, FIRST OUT"

The speaker who volunteered for the occupation force and the Far Eastern Force were in the main, young men who had seen less service than those who went overseas first. For the rest of the army it was understood that they would be released on the basis of a point system, as far as possible on the principle of "first in, first out."

"Gradually that policy has been worked down," he said.

There were many exceptions made, far more than the people expected would be made. The exceptions all applied to the army in Canada. He recalled the exceptions.

"This is opening the gate wide open," said Gen. Peakes. One exception permitted discharge of any man who could speak English or French. All a man needed to do, if he did not speak English, was to "me no speak English" in order to get out of the army and find a job ahead of the long-service veteran overseas.

RACE SYSTEM

"It is for these reasons," he said, "that I charge that the government is demobilizing our forces in a manner to the detriment of the long-service man."

It was announced recently that there would be a continued army but enlistment was open only to men of the active army or regulars discharged from it who were willing to serve wherever required. This was proper but there was in Canada a body of "fine, young, well-trained men who liked serving in the army but who were not willing to go beyond the borders of Canada. At the last report he had seen there were 100,000 NRM men trained for infantry and 12,000 trained for other arms of the service.

Gen. Peakes said he was proud of Canada's war effort and glad to hear it praised in the house.

MUST REMOVE BIAS

But there is one bias that on this occasion and it is time to remove that bias," he added.

The bias was the "bifocal army" with one section willing to serve wherever needed and the other willing to serve only in Canada.

The maintenance of the control of this bifocal two-army system should cease immediately," he said.

He proposed to support the Progressive Conservative amendments to the address with its charge that the government had failed to mobilize manpower on a fair basis and he added he believed every returned man of the house, regardless of party, should support it.

The giant redwoods of the U.S. west coast reach a height of 340 feet.

"I do not like to see British soldiers carrying back far more than they brought back long ago."

"I do not like to see British soldiers carrying back far more than they brought back long ago," said Mrs. Peakes. "I have never raised this question in the house before because I believed that it is of the utmost importance that we should maintain the most friendly relations with the army country to the south which has done so much for us and for which in so many ways and upholds the same principles of freedom."

Big Depression Examined

Fantastic Facts on Atom-Bomb Crater Revealed for First Time

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

ALAMOGORDO, N.M., Sept. 12.—(AP)—The fantastic facts about the atomic bomb crater, a saucer-shaped depression, 26 feet deep and a half-mile across, where the top quarter-inch of New Mexico's red-gray soil boiled and bubbled and then cooled into a carpet of jade and turquoise-colored glass, were revealed yesterday.

A party of 31 writers and photographers, a dozen army officers and five scientists spent half an hour in the crater Sunday afternoon in the first public inspection of the atomic bomb crater. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, head of the atomic bomb project.

The boys gave readings showing the rays would not harm anyone remaining a short time, perhaps hours, but they indicated that more than a month after July 16 explosion the rays were still strong enough to make spending a day and night right in the crater a possibly risky business.

Before he entered, every man who directed the crater's formation looked like a bomb. This was to insure that no grain of radioactive sand might cling to his shoes to remain for weeks after the explosion.

To avoid this poisoning of the earth with X-ray radioactivity, the Hiroshima and Nagasaki bombs were exploded far higher above the ground.

In the similar party was the man who directed the making of the bomb, Dr. J. R. Oppenheimer, head of the project.

Peace Treaties Being Studied

By EDWARD W. ROBERTS

Toronto in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Sept. 12.—(AP)—The foreign ministers of the Big Five and their deputies began consideration of peace treaties for Italy, Hungary, Bulgaria, Rumania and Finland today behind a wall of secrecy.

Italy was believed first on the agenda, and a communiqué reporting that yesterday's preliminary meeting was harmonious in its attitude that Russia had dropped her earlier demand for simultaneous consideration of the tough Balkan situation.

Official British sources pointed out that if Russia had intended to issue her demand, the logical time would have been at the organization's meeting yesterday. There was nothing to indicate that the Soviet Government's V. M. Molotov had received the message.

Deputies to the foreign ministers met this morning to settle technical details of the agenda to come before the plenary session. Last night's meeting was held in secret subjects would be considered once the peace treaties have been completed.

He said the Japan's hopes of expansion, and secret weapons, were so that there would be no industrial chemical warfare due to poisoning the earth with radioactive materials, and no bacteria either than the familiar ones due to any great explosion.

Animal Torturer Almost Captured

VANCOUVER, Sept. 12.—(CP)—

City police and animal yesterday staged a dramatic chase and almost captured a man believed to be Vancouver's animal slayer.

Two sound cars were dispatched to a South Vancouver area where nine-year-old Anna-belle McLellan reported seeing a suspicious looking man dragging a dog through a bush near her home. Citizens joined police in the attempt to trap the slayer.

The man eluded capture in the prosecution of dense woods. Police continued the search for more than an hour but uncovered no further signs.

Anna-belle said police she had seen the man four times and was on one occasion he had threatened to kill her. The girl's father had stated that the man had been an animal torturer who has been killing dogs, cats and rabbits in the city for several months.

He said the Japan's hopes of expansion, and secret weapons, were so that there would be no industrial chemical warfare due to poisoning the earth with radioactive materials, and no bacteria either than the familiar ones due to any great explosion.

Gen. Groves and the scientists said there was no dangerous man-made rays which might be used in the future. These rays, which travel at the speed of light, and, in the case of the atom, travel as far as the death-dealing bomb.

Ciano's Diary — No. 21

German Generals Knew in '41 They Couldn't Lick Reds

But None Dared Tell Hitler He was on Road to Ruin

Nov. 1—Dec. 2, 1941

A strange and previously unreported meeting occurred at Hitler's eastern headquarters in November, 1941, where the principal army commanders decided that war in the Soviet Union was "pure folly" and the Fuehrer was leading Germany to ruin. It is disclosed in the diary of Count Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law.

No one, Ciano said, could overcome his fear sufficiently to tell these conclusions to Hitler.

The record of his visit includes shocking references to starvation among Russian prisoners and Goering's casual story that it was only necessary to put a field kitchen at the head of a column to lead them to camp in the interior of the Reich.

One day before they were committed to war with the United States, the Italians were debating the necessity of borrowing half a million tons of grain from Germany.

Ciano wrote:

Nov. 1.—"A letter from Hitler has arrived. . . . What attracted Mussolini's attention was that anything else was that the Fuehrer said almost nothing about our divisions. . . . He said that he is evidently content about us."

"He learns British landings in Corsica, Sicily and Sardinia and orders all of his support, beginning today, in the face of a general attack which he does not expect."

"He says that a successful blow by the British might be expected."

Nov. 12.—"Believing on some uncertain information, a bulletin was passed up which attributed the sinking of two steamers of 10,000 tons to the submarine 'Malpino'."

As far as sea sinkings are concerned, the only one was that of the Italian submarine which was missing for 10 days. The admiral, Admiral Sestini, took the pencil and increased the 10,000 to 30,000 because this would create a greater effect."

"From what I said all the navy knew and repeats that Admiral Riccio, chief of naval staff, has been ordered to increase the number of mines, Petacci (mother of Mussolini's mistress). This is not desired to increase his prestige."

Nov. 12.—"We have had to change our system of pay for our foreign diplomatic agents, because we have no more foreign money."

"Mussolini has swallowed the lead. He realizes the meaning of this in the general picture of the war, and within the country, but he takes the blow like a good father and pretends he is unaware of it."

German Generals Seek a Way Out

Nov. 6.—"Anna Maria Blumack (wife of the Nazi minister) said to Anfo (Ciano's secretary) that when Gen. Rintelen (head of the German military mission in Italy) went to see the Fuehrer in the Eastern Front he was approached by the German marshals and generals and a sort of meeting occurred."

"During the meeting they entered into the field some way of conveying to Hitler that the conduct of the war in Russia is pure folly, that the German army is wearing down, that it cannot hold out, and that he is leading Germany to the brink of ruin. It seems this is the unanimous opinion of the military leaders, but no one dares to tell Hitler. Rintelen, too, has been careful not to do so."

Nov. 6.—"The figures sent by our embassy in Washington have impressed Mussolini, who asked that a comparative chart be made with earlier months. The increase is tremendous."

"It seems that Van Pelt (Nazi official) asked pointblank of a lady at dinner: 'Will the revolution begin in Italy?' The lady replied calmly: 'As you know, we follow the Germans in everything. The revolution will take place after it happens in your country.' Friendly amazement!"

Entire Convoy To Libya Lost

Nov. 5.—"Since Sept. 19, we have given up trying to get convoys to Libya. Tonight we tried it again. A convoy of seven ships left with two cruisers and 10 destroyers. . . . An engagement occurred with unexplainable results. All I mean is, our ships were sunk, and maybe two or three destroyed. . . . We have no right to expect that Hitler sends Keitel as commander in the south."

Nov. 11.—"Mussolini is exasperated and takes it out on the British, the American and the Russians.

"Hardy (Hungarian prime minister) wore a resigned air and cast a modest and cautious gaze at Germany as often as he could."

"Mikol Antonescu (Romanian) is a beginner in foreign politics."

"The Danish representative was more like a fish out of water than any of the others."

"The German representative was more like a fish out of water than any of the others."

"GOERING was impressive when he spoke of the Russians who were eating themselves, and who also have eaten a German guard in a prisoner's camp. He spoke with the utmost indifference. Yet he is human. Tears came into his eyes when he spoke of Ufa and Novosibirsk (German cities whose deaths were announced as accidental)."

"GOERING said hunger among the Russian prisoners has reached such a point that they have to march to the interior it is no longer necessary to create a greater under guard. It is enough to put a portable kitchen with its odor of food at the head of a column, and thousands and thousands of them will trail along like a herd of famished animals."

"We are in the year of grace, NOV. 25.—The battle of Manzikert (the Taurus in Syria) has been won by the Germans, because they have more than any episode so far in the war."

"We should wish the British situation would become very difficult. Britain would have to face four crises. Public opinion at home, delusion in America, a clear separation from France, and loss of life in the East, with repercussions in Turkey and even India."

DEC. 1.—"Five ships of a convoy were forced to turn back, one was lost, and two were sunk. The result is not brilliant."

"The Libyan situation has crystallized. General Caviglioli, chief of the general staff, defines it as serious but constant. God only knows what he means."

"Experience teaches me that the general's entrance into themselves behind some unintelligible jargon, it means they have lost of it."

DEC. 2.—"Duce is concerned about the food problem. He is convinced now we lack 5,000,000 quintals (about 500,000 tons) of grain to supply our needs. It will be necessary to borrow it from Germany."

"Mussolini cannot make up his mind to write a letter to the Fuehrer making the request. He seems to be absolutely necessary. Even those responsible for domestic order believe that any more food restrictions, certainly will cause disorders."

Governor-General Sails For Britain

QUERQUET, Sept. 12.—(CP)—The gold and blue flag of the governor-general fluttering at the foremast, the liner Canadian Scotland pulled away from Wolfe's Cove pier last night, carrying the Earl of Athlone to Britain.

Also on a two-month leave to Britain, also aboard the 26,000-ton Canadian Pacific liner was Maj. Gen. George F. Vanier, Canadian ambassador to France, who has been in Ottawa since the visit of Gen. Charles de Gaulle in 1944, and who is returning to England and the continent. Some 400 passengers made up the sailing list.

Jap Envoy Claims F.D.R. Told 'Explosion' Was Near

By DUANE HENNESSY

KARUIZAWA, Japan, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Sakuro Kurino, Jap ambassador to Washington, who was on a special "peace mission" in Washington when the Pacific war started, claimed here yesterday that he had told President Roosevelt in November, 1941, that a spark would set off the conflagration known as that prior to leaving for Washington in the first week of late 1941, he had visited Manchuria, Formosa, Hong Kong and Manila. "If anyone should say 'Japan is the aggressor' it will come," he said, he said, the President replied "Yes, and that's that."

The Japanese diplomat, who claimed he had no knowledge that Japan was moving against Hawaii, represented President Roosevelt as anxious to end the conflict between Japan and China. He said that the President was having said Japan and China are not an opposing system. I don't know if there is such a term in diplomacy, but how about me saying it?"

Kurino said that then State Secretary Hull intervened because he did not trust "the party then in power in Japan." He said, however, that Mr. Hull was sincerely working for peace and claimed that he was "swept for peace in the very heart of the Japanese people."

Kurino, in flashy dress and covered constantly at the moment, said that Japan had 100 million people, and that the people will have a greater voice.

The RADAR NEWS

By Capt. HARPER PROWSE, M.L.A.

JUST a few nights ago I had the privilege of attending one of the finest "welcome home" ceremonies yet offered to any servicemen, and women, by any community in this province. It was simple, sincere and effective. And, what made it best of all, 99 per cent of the people in the community attended it.

It was held in the community hall in Standard and was tendered by the people of the Standard-Chancellor community, which is situated about 50 miles east of Calgary. There aren't more than 70 people in the entire district which has sent nearly 140 of its sons and daughters to serve the King and country in the armed services.

The people of this community are rightly proud of their war effort and especially proud of the individuals who are returning home and their families. Recently they decided they were going to show those men and women just how proud of them they were when they returned. They didn't just pass flowers and red roses, they went to work to do something about it.

FORMED COMMITTEE
First of all they formed a committee. Then they collected $1,300 from the people in the community. They decided to hold a welcome home banquet for those men and women who had been away for three months until every one of their sons and daughters who put on uniforms were back home. They had the men who are coming back.

The other evening they had their first of a series of "Welcome Home" banquets. It was held in the community hall. The women of the community planned, cooked and served a really good supper to more than 600 people. Guests of honor at the head table were the servicemen and their wives. The women from the community who have returned home already. The chairman, his assistants, and the committee helped out in a corner. That was the idea.

After the supper was finished the chairman toasted "The King." Everybody drank the toast in good coffee. Then the school principal toasted "The Flag." It was responded to by one of the returned sons, a man that everyone gathered realized just what the last six years have been all about as far as he and his community were concerned. It was effective.

Then there were some vocal recitations and community singing after which the imported help had a few words to add to the proceedings. Then came the best of the evening.

Each and everyone of those men and women who had been away for three months until every one of their sons and daughters who put on uniforms were back home. They had the men who are coming back.

After the presentation ceremony the decks were cleared for action, a band was produced from some where and everybody danced until the wee small hours of the morning and then went home happy.

Now all this may not sound very impressive the way I describe it, but those sons and daughters were right proud of their certificates and pleased with their prize. You could tell by looking at them that they thought the old home district was a mighty fine place to come back to. And they knew that the war was over and that they were home. When they said they were glad they were home.

That evening is going to be repeated every three months until they are all home. It will mean war, but it will be worth it. It left the impression on me that these people meant it when they said they were going to see that those sons and daughters who fought the war for them were going to get every possible opportunity for rehabilitation and services.

If one district can do it, all districts can do it. If your district hasn't done something like this yet, why not? And if you don't, why not? That is just too late—and there are a lot more to come home.

SECOND SECTION EDMONTON, ALBERTA—WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1945 PAGE NINE

Cafe Operators State Coupons May Be "Short"

Edmonton restaurateurs were doubtful of their supply of meat coupons for the month required under the new meat rationing regulations, a survey here on Wednesday revealed. Many did not expect any greater difficulty than was experienced during the previous meat rationing period.

It was still too early to be quite certain that their supply of coupons, issued to them once a month would be adequate. If it is not they say, they will fill out their menus with non-meat dishes.

"If we have to be helped, we should take a little loss for ourselves," was the philosophical comment of John A. Johnson, proprietor of Johnson's cafe.

"Of course," Mr. Johnson continued, "we may have to subsidize a little, but it's still too early to tell how it will work out; we find it more trouble than it is worth before."

ISSUE COUPONS OFTEN
Those coupons should be issued often rather than once a month was the suggestion put forward by George Spence, of the American Barbecue Lunch. He felt that there was not enough of the "meat" rationing first issue to cafe, but hoped that the situation would right itself in time.

The system could be simplified and modified to save a lot of annoyance to meat retailers and customers, according to the manager of the South Side Coffee Shop. He could not tell how it would affect his business, but said that meat coupons "seemed inadequate."

In general, cafe managers are anxious to have meat coupons issued often rather than once a month. They feel that the issue of coupons is a little too far apart for the needs of the community.

The promotion of Colonel Roger Q. Williams, veteran flier, to that rank, was announced Wednesday by headquarters of the Air Transport Command's Alaskan Division.

Colonel Williams, chief of maintenance for the division, drew international attention by his record-breaking flight from New York to Rome in 1929. In preparing for the flight he established a new record by flying the air 32 hours, an endurance record at the time.

His achievement he was awarded the medal of the year by Pope Pius XI. He was also awarded the Medal of Honor by the U.S. Army.

States Country Looking to Govt. For Leadership

OTTAWA, Sept. 12.—(CP)—Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt, VC, making his maiden speech in the Commons, said last night that the country was looking to the government for leadership in leading it to full employment. Members of the House wanted to hear from Reconstruction Minister Howe who was responsible for jobs.

"The gentlemen opposite think they have been leading this country for a long time," said Col. Merritt, Progressive Conservative member for Vancouver Burrard.

CARRIED BY COUNTRY
"As a matter of fact this country has been carrying these gentlemen on its back. The only thing that has saved us is that this is a great country and it is strong enough to carry them on its back."

A new social order was not needed to bring full employment. What the people looked for was not the new social order the CCF talked of but action and leadership from the government.

Such matters as housing were not to be discussed as small issues. The people did not mind bad housing during a war but the war was over and they were promised action.

So far at Vancouver was concerned there had been none. The over all shortage of housing was estimated as high as 30,000 but it would be conservative to place it at 5,000 or 6,000.

UNSATISFACTORY HOUSING
On one day as many as 1,400 applicants of the Vancouver Housing Board were turned away as the shelter accommodation is in unsatisfactory housing.

The trouble was a bottleneck in supplies and there was no authority to raise action and get supplies moving.

BARBARA IS AN "EX."—Barbara Hutton, three-week end store heiress, is being shown here as she prepares to give evidence which won her an unexpected divorce from Gary Grant, the actor.

Resigns Post
CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Louis Ruppel, executive director of the Chicago Herald-American since last October, announced his resignation yesterday, effective Oct. 1. Mr. Ruppel, associated with the Cronkite-Columbia publishing concern, prior to the war and managing editor of the Chicago Times for four years, did not announce his future plans.

Big Enrolment
SACKVILLE, N.B., Sept. 12.—(CP)—War veterans may raise enrolment at the Mount Allison national institutions to 1,000 in history.

Ministers Are Told About Leadership

OTTAWA, Sept. 12.—(CP)—Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt, VC, (PC-Vancouver-Burrard) last night drew on his war experience to give some advice to cabinet ministers.

He said the country looked to them for leadership but to give leadership they needed to do two things, get the country and see how their policies were working and give the people information, tell them what they wanted and why.

No one was to be any good who remained at his headquarters. A general was good only when he gave his orders to a staff officer and then got out with the troops to see how things were going.

"Sounds like regimentation," interpreted a CCF member.

Well, he said, returned Col. Merritt. "It's leadership. You wouldn't know the difference."

Apartment Houses Planned at Coast
OTTAWA, Sept. 12.—(CP)—J. T. Duffield of the Pacific Northwest Development Company, Vancouver, said last night he hoped to complete arrangements with the national housing administration here today for construction of apartment houses in Vancouver at a cost of $1,000,000. Mr. Duffield, who has been in Vancouver from Vancouver he had already completed negotiations for the Vancouver housing project, to be built under the National Housing Act.
